- ◆ Alumnus named OSHP Pharmacist of the Year

Dear Alumni and Friends,

Since the inception of the Pharm. D. program in 1999, more than 90 percent of the pharmacists-in-training entering the program obtained their degree. We are confident that this year's graduates will continue the tradition of the last several years of a 100 percent pass rate on the NAPLEX exam on the first attempt! I am extremely proud of both our faculty and students for making these outstanding accomplishments possible and providing our nation with a cadre of bright, well-educated pharmacists. This fall, we welcomed 90 new degree candidates. This is the largest class admitted since we started the new curriculum.

The last several months have been a time of change for faculty and staff. With bittersweet emotions, we celebrated retirement for two people who both had more than 30 years of service to the university: Evelyn Madison and Dr. Lee Strandberg. They will be greatly missed—as will their institutional memory! Dr. Tony Collins (pharmacology) accepted a position in Belfast, Ireland and Dr. Sandra Earle has relocated with her family to Ohio, where she plans to find a new faculty position. Diane Nauman has returned to full-time practice in Albany.

In June, we welcomed Vickie Staffelbach as our new director of college administration. She came to us from the University of Oregon, but we are quickly making her a Beaver. New faculty members in Corvallis are Dr. Chrissa Kioussi (pharmacology), Dr. Kerry McPhail (medicinal chemistry) and Dr. Stacy Ramirez (community practice). Joining us in Portland are Dr. Joel Marrs (internal medicine), Dr. Jessina McGregor (pharmacoepidemiology), and Dr. Craig Williams (internal medicine).

Searches are underway for faculty with expertise in cardiology, clinical pharmacokinetics, community practice/ ambulatory care, pharmacoeconomics/ health care systems, and to assist with the early experiential program management.

We will be moving to our new space on the Portland Riverfront campus in October. We look forward to hosting an open house for alumni and friends after the first of the year.

I continue to enjoy meeting with faculty around the state and beyond. The largest gathering was at the Icons in Pharmacy dinner to celebrate the induction of Noel Flynn ('42), Chuck Maples ('63), and Bill Campbell ('65) into the College of Pharmacy Hall of Fame.

While in Lakeview this spring, it was my great pleasure to meet Helen Kennedy ('51), Dorothy Howard, and Doris Thornton. Jim Howard and Lane "Skip" Thornton were community leaders for many years. In fact, two generations of Thornton pharmacists and four generations from the Howard Family have practiced in Lakeview since the late 1800s. Jeff Howard ('84) and Melinda Gray Howard ('84) continue to operate Howard's Pharmacy, and their son Jacob is a currently a third-year professional student. I also had the opportunity to talk with Audrey Baggett, wife of Keith Baggett ('55) who also practiced in Lakeview prior to his death.

Pat Person ('83) and John O'Connell ('83) joined me for lunch in Corvallis this summer. In August, my wife, Carolyn, and I had a wonderful opportunity to have brunch in Orange County with Al ('70) and Debbie Carver, Reed ('71) and Julie Rosling ('69), and Lee ('72) and Denise Souder. Larry Chew ('60) and Leo Ward ('58) also were kind enough to take some time to visit with me in California this year.

Please contact Megan Hoffart at 541-737-4014 or at megan.hoffart@oregonstate.edu if you would like to host a small reception in your home or at a nearby restaurant in your area. It is a great opportunity for me to learn more about your experiences at OSU and to share the great things happening at the college.

Sincerely,

Wayne A. Kradjan, PharmD, BCPS
Dean and Professor

First Annual Icons of Pharmacy

The First Annual Icons of Pharmacy was held on June 8, 2006, at the Portland City Grill in downtown Portland. Recognition as an OSU Icon of Pharmacy is reserved for OSU alumni or those who have demonstrated dedication to the College of Pharmacy, and who have distinguished themselves through sustained and meritorious contributions to the profession throughout their careers.

The first three OSU Icons of Pharmacy inducted into the Pharmacy Hall of Fame were Noel Flynn ('43), Charles "Chuck" Maples ('63), and William "Bill" Campbell ('65). See page 13 for their biographies.

The event began with cocktails and a panoramic view of the sunset over downtown Portland. One hundred guests then shared an exquisite dinner of fresh salmon and chicken. The evening concluded with a program honoring the first Icons of Pharmacy.

Friends and colleagues took the opportunity to celebrate why each of these distinguished honorees are truly Icons of Pharmacy. Fond memories and heartfelt humor made the evening truly enjoyable.

Guests enjoy the panoramic view from the Portland City Grill on the 30th floor of the Bancorp Building in downtown Portland.

Ed Hart and Sherrie Cooper take a moment to connect at the festivities.

Nominations for next year's Icons of Pharmacy induction will be solicited by direct mail to current Pharmacy Hall of Fame and College of Pharmacy Advisory Council members, through solicitations in the BEAVERx, and through the College of Pharmacy's web site.

Nominations may also be made by faculty members, staff members, alumni, and other friends of the college. Written nominations are due by February 1, 2007.

2006 Graduation Day

The sixth annual College of Pharmacy Graduate Recognition Ceremony was held Saturday, June 17, in the Austin Auditorium at LaSells Stewart Center. Sixty-three graduates, 23 faculty members, and more than 500 family members and friends participated.

Jill Garlisch ('06), student body president, spoke to the assembly, celebrating their years together and honoring the graduates for their hard work.

Students were recognized for academic excellence, effective communication, and professional leadership. (See the the list of award recipients on the following page).

After the awards were presented, graduates were given their graduation certificates and honored for completing the Pharm.D. degree program. Aporn Stein ('06) led the graduates

Annual Student Recognition Banquet

This year's annual Student Recognition Banquet was an event to be remembered. On the evening of Wednesday, June 6, P1 Christina Andrade, master of ceremonies for the evening, kicked off the banquet with a welcome from Dean Wayne Kradjan.

In addition to the awards given each year by college supporters (see the list at right) Dean Kradjan also presented numerous certificates, including those to students who received the highest GPAs in each class (P1 through P3).

Before the banquet, each class had chosen a Professor of the Year and each of them was recognized at the banquet. This year's recipients were Roberto Linares (P1s), Theresa Filtz (P2s), Sandra Earle (P3s), and Deanna Moretz (P4s).

Phi Delta Chi presented several awards for the evening. P1 Robin Traver was recognized as Brother of the Year. The Pledge of the Year was given to pre-pharmacy student Erika Styles.

Among the highlights of the evening was a showcase of student talent. Opening with a musical number were P2 Evan McAllister and his wife Rebecca. Next, P2 Kristina Christner and her partner performed a West Coast Swing dance number. Following that performance, P2 Linda Wylie (vocals), Academic Advisor Nicole Kent (vocals), P2 Kai Yamashita (guitar), and P1 Robert Leontyev (piano) performed a song from the popular Broadway show Rent. The last performance in the showcase was a hula dance performed by P1 Jamie Tomita, P1 Martina Man and P2 Shannon Nohara. ♦

Larry Cartier Named Preceptor of the Year

Larry Cartier has been selected 2006 Preceptor of the Year for the OSU College of Pharmacy. He is an extraordinary pharmacist and mentor, and a remarkable supporter of students. He works closely with students to ensure that they succeed in academia, professional development, and extra-curricular endeavors. He routinely helps students with funding for professional meetings.

“I could not think of a more deserving preceptor, at least in my experience, for this recognition,” says 2006 graduate Thad Mick. “Larry is not only an advocate and role model for students, but also a champion for pharmacy within the state. He is truly a mentor among both students and his peers.”

Cartier works for Wellpartner, a specialty mail order/home delivery pharmacy practice that employs innovative technology and automation. A clerkship rotation at Wellpartner exposes students to a nontraditional pharmacy practice setting. In addition to a clinical pharmacy experience, students gain experience in pharmacy operations and the various business aspects of a start-up company such as marketing, business development, finance, IT, and web applications. ♦

WANTED: Alumni Preceptors and Housing Hosts

Interested in serving as a preceptor for some of the nation's brightest fourth-year pharmacy students?

We're seeking new sites in which to place our highly skilled P4s for a six-week rotation experience. We welcome preceptors anywhere across the nation and around the world, and we're especially interested in smaller cities and rural locations.

Inexpensive housing can be a tremendous incentive for students to serve in remote locations. If you (or someone you know) are willing to rent or provide a room to students, please contact Dr. Deanna Moretz at 503.494.1316 or moretzd@ohsu.edu.

Reason to Celebrate

Jill Garlich ('06) had an additional reason to celebrate at her graduation on June 17. She became engaged to Phil McClellan, a 1995 OSU graduate. Family and friends looked on as Phil proposed immediately following the graduation ceremony. They are planning to wed in June 2007 in Vancouver, Washington.

Rho Chi Member Initiation

Eighteen new members were inducted into the Beta Chapter of the Rho Chi Society at their 84th initiation ceremony. The ceremony took place during the College of Pharmacy annual retreat at Gleneden Beach, Oregon, on April 7 and 8, 2006.

Gary DeLander was installed as national president of the Rho Chi Society on March 19, 2006. He was recognized during the ceremony for this accomplishment and for his service to the society.

The Rho Chi Society encourages and recognizes excellence in intellectual achievement and advocates critical inquiry in all aspects of pharmacy. It encourages high standards of conduct and character and fosters fellowship among its members. It seeks universal recognition of its members as lifelong intellectual leaders in pharmacy. ♦

Rho Chi Provides a Lens for Oregon Pharmacy History

by Katie Welch, Class of 2007

circa 1918, five Oregon Agricultural College students heard about an honor society for pharmacy students that had formed at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor in 1908. Called The Aristolochite Society, it was a self-directed honor fraternity for pharmacy students at UM. The society had been inducting approximately 10 new members per year “to promote good fellowship and advance pharmaceutical science.”

The five students—Morrice Kaegi ('20), Katherine Waite ('19), Paul Jewell ('19), Walter Belt ('20), and Laura Ziegler ('19)—probably heard about the Aristolochite Society from a faculty member H.B. McWilliams. Williams was a graduate of Michigan who wanted the pharmacy honor society to become a national phenomenon. In addition, the pharmacy school's dean, Adolph Ziefle, had been a student member of Aristolochite at Michigan.

The students petitioned the Michigan chapter for a charter as a collegiate chapter of the Aristolochite Society. Permission was granted in June 1919, officially establishing OSU as the Beta Chapter. Morrice Kaegi served as chapter president and Katherine Waite served as secretary.

The five students were unaware that a special committee of pharmacy school educators was concurrently working to establish a nationwide honor society for the same purpose. The president of the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties—then the primary organizing body for pharmacy education—had called for a society “which would mean for pharmacy what the Phi Beta Kappa society meant for literature [and] the Omega Alpha for medicine...”

As a result, in early 1922 the committee organized “an honorary pharmaceutical society, whose object will be to stimulate scholarship and research and to which scholarship shall be the basis of election... the society would be open to men and women, and make no race distinction.” In the custom of other honor societies, Greek letters were adopted for the name, and Rho Chi was born.

The Alpha and Beta chapters of the Aristolochite Society—UM and OSU—became the Alpha and Beta chapters of the Rho Chi Society. The charter certificate of the Beta Chapter of Rho Chi, dated June 3, 1922 and signed by the members, still hangs in the hallway of the Pharmacy Building on the OSU campus.

Charter Member Morrice Kaegi

Morrice Kaegi took his pharmacy examination on May 18, 1920. The City Directory of 1921 reveals that he worked at Felvarg Brothers Pharmacy in Portland, Oregon. But Kaegi—who grew up in the pioneer town of Oakland, Oregon—was already thirsty for a new challenge, so he applied to medical school at the University of Oregon.

He was accepted, and just needed to send in his $15 registration fee. However, he instead applied that money toward the purchase of a newly vacant storefront at 51st and Sandy Blvd., where he opened his first pharmacy. He lived upstairs.

According to Richard Kaegi ('52) and John Kaegi ('57)—who still have their father's medical school acceptance letter and his Aristolochite Society pin—it was probably a family tradition of small business ownership that changed his mind.

“His father had a grocery store in Ashland,” said John Kaegi. “A couple of years after he bought the pharmacy, he wrote his father and said, ‘I’m taking in $35 dollars a day, and I think I’m going to make it.’”

It was a good thing that Kaegi stayed in the pharmacy business, because he went on to fulfill Rho Chi’s mission of promoting fellowship and pharmaceutical science by becoming a leader in the field.

In the late 1920s, Kaegi helped to found the Druggists Cooperative Association, which enabled pharmacists to pool their resources to obtain better prices on everything from medications to pens. The cooperative (later known as Mutual Wholesale Drug) operated into the 1970s and also developed the field of generic medications through its own brand of over-the-counter remedies.

Kaegi presided over the Oregon State Board of Pharmacy in 1935 and was president of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy. He had honorary licenses from 20 states for his service to the various state boards, which he posted in his pharmacy.

“People would come in and joke ‘you can’t hold a job anywhere, they keep running you out!’” remembered Richard Kaegi.

Kaegi also served as OSPA president and president of the Portland Retail Druggists Association, the primary professional organization for pharmacies at the time. He soon opened a second pharmacy, Kaegi’s Laurelhurst, at 38th and Belmont.

Kaegi passed away in 1952 before he could see his sons thrive in the profession he helped develop. The Sandy Blvd. store was sold, and the Kaegi brothers continued to operate the Belmont store until 1973 when they moved it to Wilsonville, becoming that township’s first pharmacy. In 1989 they sold it to PayLess, but continued to operate the pharmacy for another ten years.

Along the way, the Kaegis accumulated and preserved an impressive collection of pill rollers, mortars and pestles, scales, and a vast array of odd and exciting old remedy bottles and tins. They donated their collection to the Museum of the Oregon Territory in Oregon City, where it is on display today to provide a snapshot of the pharmacy of yesterday. For a peek, go to the museum’s website at www.orcity.com/museum and follow the links. ♦

Can You Help Us Find Other Rho Chi Charter Members?

It is difficult to trace what became of Rho Chi’s other charter members. The earliest records of the Oregon State Board of Pharmacy were destroyed by fire. Remaining records confirm that all the Rho Chi members passed their examinations and received Oregon licenses.

Are you related to or do you have any information on Rho Chi charter members Katherine Waite, Laura Ziegler Bunn, Paul Jewell, or Walter Belt? If so, we would like to talk to you!

Graduate Student Retreat

Mattias Sobel, an international student from the University of Mainz, displays his poster at the graduate student retreat. Sobel worked in Dr. Mark Leid's lab as part of his pharmacy program in Germany.

Brown Bag Event

P1 Charisa Flaherty practices taking P1 Robin Traver's blood pressure at a Brown Bag event earlier in the academic year. Brown Bag events provide an opportunity for community members—usually the elderly—to have supervised students review their medications, check for drug interactions, and answer any questions they may have.

Icons of Pharmacy

Noel Flynn ('43)

Noel Flynn received a BS in pharmacy from Oregon State College (now OSU) in 1943. After graduation, Peyton Hawes—the eventual founder of PayLess—immediately hired him to work as a pharmacist in the wartime community of Vanport, Oregon. In 1944, Flynn entered the U.S. Navy as a pharmacist and worked in the Navy hospitals at Camp Adair near Corvallis and Camp White near Medford.

After the war, Flynn went back to Vanport for about a year and then began managing a store in east Portland. In 1947, he moved to Klamath Falls to manage a drugstore that would become PayLess a few years later.

Flynn was vice president and member of the board of directors at PayLess when the company went public on October 31, 1967. He continued to manage the store in Klamath Falls until 1972, and then moved to work out of the Portland office. During that time, he focused all his energies on pharmacy administration.

PayLess sold their stores to K-Mart in the mid-1980s, then K-Mart sold to Thrifty Drug. Flynn retired in 1989, before the Thrifty buyout. Eventually the stores were sold to Rite Aid, making them part of a conglomerate of 2,000 stores.

Noel and his wife Cornelia have been married for 63 years. They have two sons, Jim and Richard. They enjoy spending time with their three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Charles (Chuck) Maples ('63)

Chuck Maples earned a BS in pharmacy from OSU and then attended the Kellogg Business School. He was an entrepreneur from the start. He purchased his first pharmacy in 1964, just a year after he graduated from OSU. Maples went on to establish a long-term care pharmacy and the Konva Care Medical supply company. He also worked with the Associated Home Health Care Agency and Partners in Pharmacy.

Maples represented pharmacy at President Clinton's Pacific Rim Conference. He has worked with the Drug Enforcement Administration in Washington, D.C., to establish new rules for long-term care patients and has served as president of the American Society of Consulting Pharmacy (ASCP), Kiwanis, and Toastmasters. He has been a member of numerous professionals associations, including the American Pharmaceutical Association, the Oregon Society of Consultant Pharmacists, and Joint Commission of Pharmacy Practitioners.

Today, Maples enjoys the retired life along with his wife of 47 years, Eileen. They have five children: Mike, Kim, Kathy, Kristi, and Matt, and 15 grandchildren to spoil. Maples serves on the board of directors for MBank of Gresham, Oregon.

William ("Bill") H. Campbell ('65)

Bill Campbell earned a BS in pharmacy in 1965 and an MS in 1968 from OSU. After completing his PhD at Purdue University in 1971, he returned to OSU as an assistant professor at what was then called the School of Pharmacy.

He moved on to become department chair of Pharmacy Practice at the University of Washington, and was then appointed dean of the School of Pharmacy at Auburn University. In 1992, he accepted the deanship at University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy. He is currently adjunct professor of Pharmaceutical Outcomes and Policy, and dean emeritus of the UNC School of Pharmacy.

Campbell was the founding principal investigator of the UNC Center for Education and Research in Therapeutics. He is a member of the Expert Advisory Committee for the United Mineworkers Fund and has served as a senior scientific advisor to the Office of Drug Safety, Food and Drug Administration. He has held appointments as a visiting scientist with Glaxo Smith Kline and Research Triangle Institute.

He is a former president of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy and former member of the board of trustees of the United States Pharmacopeia. His wife, Karen, is an OSU pharmacy graduate ('65). Bill and Karen have two children, a daughter Kelly and son Scott. They will celebrate their fortieth wedding anniversary this year. ♦

1972 Graduate Realizes His Dream of Serving as an International Volunteer

While an undergraduate at Oregon State University, Donald M. Hilligoss ('72 BS Pharmacy) wanted to join a UN-sponsored medical ship serving poverty-stricken countries. Acceptance into a hospital pharmacy residency program immediately following graduation required postponement of the idea. Grad school, a career, and family responsibilities then took precedence.

More than 30 years later, Hilligoss had both time and opportunity to pursue his goal. Thanks to a unique program offered by his employer, Pfizer Global Research and Development, Angkor Hospital for Children (AHC) in Siem Reap, Cambodia, became his workplace for three months. The company's Global Health Fellow program sends employees into developing countries with high rates of HIV/AIDS in an attempt to have a beneficial effect on local healthcare delivery systems.

Hilligoss joined a multinational volunteer team at AHC. The hospital was built in 1999 after Kenro Izu made a trip to Cambodia to photograph the Angkor monuments. Moved by the sight of so many children without medical care, he founded Friends Without A Border, which funded the hospital.

AHC Administrators asked Hilligoss to train and encourage the three hospital pharmacists to move into patient care areas, becoming more involved. A heavy outpatient load—filling some 300 prescriptions a day—makes this difficult. To achieve his goal, Hilligoss and the pharmacists went on teaching rounds, became more involved in patient teaching, and provided consultations.

Hilligoss received his doctor of pharmacy from University of the Sciences in Philadelphia in 1975. He worked for two years as clinical coordinator of pediatric pharmacy services at The New York Hospital–Cornell University Medical College and then as a pharmacist at the University of California at Los Angeles Hospital. In 1980, he became an assistant clinical professor of pharmacy and pediatrics at West Virginia University Medical Center in Charleston. Eight years later, he joined Pfizer in Groton, Connecticut, as a senior clinical investigator, becoming an associate director in 1991.

International Volunteer

Hilligoss says it was gratifying to see the drug fluconazole, an antifungal, being used to help children dealing with malnutrition and HIV. Although the drug being dispensed at AHC was a generic drug made in India, the package inserts contained specific information on pharmacokinetics and drug interactions directly out of Phase I studies Hilligoss had done with pediatric patients at Pfizer in the late 1980s.

Hilligoss hopes to return to AHC. “It was much more personally rewarding than anything I’ve done lately,” he said. ♦

Carl Heisel ('75) Named OSHP Pharmacist of the Year

Oregon Society of Health System Pharmacist Immediate Past President Lynn Belcher announced the recognition of 1975 graduate Carl Heisel as OSHP Pharmacist of the Year with the following remarks in the May/June 2006 issue of that organization's newsletter:

“This year’s pharmacist has a passion for teaching. He has been involved in the development of a Pharmacy Practice Residency program and regularly precepts pharmacy students and residents in anticoagulation and medicine rotations. He has taught pharmacy technicians, nurses, EMTs and physicians over the years....

He has been a driving force that changed the daily activities of the pharmacist from distribution to providing patient-care services. His clinical expertise and credibility with the medical staff is widely known. He also has a dedication to serving the profession of pharmacy through his professional society. He has held many positions and offices over the years.... He is well-known for voicing his opinion, both at the state and national level....”

In his leisure time, Carl enjoys racing, teaching and coaching sailing at the Willamette Sailing Club. He is married to Lea and has two children, Curt and Kelly.
