

Photo Abstract - Herptiles

Submitted by Robin Galloway

Who said girls are supposed to be afraid of snakes and scaly critters? These fearless females apparently like herptiles, and it's mutual since the slithery creatures crawled inside their clothes, hair, etc. The iguana wrangler (first girl on the left) owns the animals, and provided them for an educational class at the Oregon 4-H Conference & Education Center near Salem. The girls were counselors at the Linn-Benton-Lincoln-Tillamook Counties 4-H Camp in June.
